Training in Real Life Policing

CRJ 260 class, Technology in Law Enforcement participated in a simulation exercise, where real life policing is explored through use of real firearms with paint filled ammunition.

Students enjoyed the exercise stating that it gave them great insight into law enforcement. The students noted that they enjoy the Criminal Justice classes at Joliet Junior College because they receive true-life experience's, making them more confident in their education and career choice.

We would like to thank Chris Luttrell, and the JJC police department for training us and allowing us to use their facility.
